

2022 RNA Society Inclusion Initiative

The RNA Society is excited to offer our Inclusion Initiative in 2022 to support broad access to the cutting-edge advances in RNA research featured in the on-line RNA 2022 Content Library.

The RNA Society Inclusion Initiative aims to enhance participation from under-represented scientists and RNA researchers who might not otherwise have financial resources to cover subscription costs for the RNA 2022 Content Library. This program provides a full waiver of the RNA 2022 Content Library subscription fee for individuals who are current RNA Society members and who belong to at least two of the following categories:

- RNA 2022 would be the first meeting of the RNA Society (either in-person or virtual/on-line) that you have attended/participated in.
- The primary location where you carry out your research is NOT in the USA, Canada or Europe.
- You are a member of an under-represented* group of scientists that include marginalized racial, ethnic or gender identify groups, those having disability or impairment, and/or from a disadvantaged background. **Please note that being female does not alone qualify as a minority or under-represented group within the RNA research community and, therefore, is not a criterion for eligibility in the 2022 RNA Society Inclusion Initiative.*
- You study, train, or teach at an academic institution that does not receive external research funding (i.e. your institution does not routinely receive government, foundational and/or commercial funding to conduct scientific research, such as a Primarily Undergraduate Institution, for example).

To receive an RNA Society Inclusion Initiative waiver and free subscription to the on-line RNA 2022 Content Library, please ensure your RNA Society membership is up-to-date for 2022. You will be asked on the subscription registration form to attest that 2 or more boxes above are applicable to your circumstance and must provide your current RNA Society member number to receive the fee waiver.

Available funds for the 2022 RNA Society Inclusion Initiative are limited – waived subscriptions for the RNA 2022 Content Library will be given to qualified applicants on a first-come, first-served basis. Subscriptions for the RNA 2022 Content Library will be accepted starting May 1st!